Dear Sir Robert Falconer,

May I take the liberty of enclosing a copy of the note I have written today to Mr. Arnold. We had a telephone conversation

This morning - but a written statement will be more satisfactory.

I am sorry to give you any trouble,

Yours sincerely,

C. Helen Wellington.

Dear Mr. Arnold,

As there is evidently a misunderstanding, not of my creation, as to my resuming duty at the Organ for the Sunday Services in Convocation

Hall, may I be definitely informed please whether the authorities in charge of the Sunday Services wish me to resume duty now, or to leave the duty for the remaining services of the session to Miss Wilson, who was appointed as my temporary substitute.

Yours sincerely,

C. Helen Mennigham.

Miss Fotheringham,

20 Wellesley Street,

Toronto.

Dear Miss Fotheringham:

I am very sorry that there was a misunderstanding in regard to what you intended in speaking to Mr. Arnold about the organ. I think you will see that in view of the fact that the negotiations were between ourselves and that we asked him to deal with Mr. Deagan to make arrangements during your absence it is very difficult for us to over-rule any arrangements that he entered into in good faith. Of course it is difficult for us to tell why he took the organ. It is most unfortunate there was not a private statement between you on which the agreement was based. I do not see what further action I can take in the matter.

Yours faithfully,

President.
